

- Through teaching Spanish how do you show your students other cultures?
- I could teach both German and programming so what kind of benefits do you see in teaching language over other subjects?
- I was never in the public school system, so am fairly unfamiliar with its specifics of how that kind of setting works, so how would you describe your average day teaching?
- I am a computer science major, and I think I would love to teach programming and logic/math at a high school level. I know these are not always offered at every school, so with your experience with public school system, how would you recommend finding teaching opportunities
- How much control do you have over your curriculum?
- Have you ever taught abroad, if so what was that experience like?
- It's often said that having a second language often helps with finding a job. Besides teaching Spanish, how have you taken advantage of your language skills?
